New York, Hawaii Big Island and Los Angeles

You simply cannot miss out on this chance to travel America from coast to coast, starting off in the 'capital of the world', New York, paying a visit to Hawaii's Big Island and finishing off in the ever-vibrant Los Angeles. The first stop is in New York, one of the most exciting and cosmopolitan cities in the whole world. The attractions in the Big Apple are endless, but there are a few must-sees that every visitor should tick off. These include the Empire State Building, Central Park, Times Square, Fifth Avenue, Wall Street and the Statue of Liberty, the ultimate icon of New York. As for museums, the MOMA, the Guggenheim and the Metropolitan are the essentials. After the urban exuberance of NYC, it's time to explore the rugged exuberance of Big Island, Hawaii. Also nicknamed the island of volcanoes, its lunar landscapes, its heavenly beaches and its outstanding natural heritage will remain etched in your memory forever. Make sure you visit the Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, a Biosphere Reserve since 1987; Punalu'u Beach, with its intense black sands; the Akaka Falls State Park, with waterfalls crashing down from a height of 135 metres; and the Hamakua Historical Corridor, a scenic route that stretches from Hilo to Waipio. The very best option to unearth the roots of an island inhabited for thousands of years. The last stop of the trip is in Los Angeles, mecca of the world's showbiz industry. LA is first and foremost the home of Hollywood, the dream-making machine of the world. On the Hollywood Walk of Fame, you can seek out your favourite artist among the nearly 3,000 stars embedded in the pavement, making sure you immortalise the moment. The palm trees of Santa Monica, the luxury of Beverly Hills, the ever-shining sun, the multicultural neighbourhoods of Koreatown, Little Ethiopia and Little Tokyo, and the abandoned zoo in Griffin Park are just some of the many attractions in this fascinating metropolis.
