The canals are flanked by towering verdant forests that are the habitat of rich and varied wildlife. This is the country's most iconic park, as well as being the most important spawning ground for huge sea turtles. The long, sprawling beaches attract baula, carey and green turtles to release their eggs. Carey turtles spawn in this area during the months of July to October, baulas from February to July, most frequently during April and May, and greens from July to October. Local hotels organise special trips to the beach during these months, led by specialist guides. This excursion is not included in the price. Dinner and overnight stay.
